The 4 C's of Membership

Communication

NACBHDD members receive four regular email communications a month in addition to organizational announcements. At the end of each of the first three weeks of the month, all NACBHDD contacts receive the Week in Review: a summary of local, state, and federal news relating to behavioral health and I/DD issues. Members receive an exclusive monthly email on the last week of the month: NACBHDD News. This communication features in-depth policy analysis, interviews of NACBHDD members, and more specialized content tailored to fit the needs of our members.

In addition to the regularly scheduled emails, members will also receive information about NACBHDD's projects, events, and other updates. Through collaboration with other mission-driven organizations, NACBHDD produces projects that highlight local, county, and regional implementation efforts and cross-sectional policy analysis that members will have first access to.

Connection

As a NACBHDD member you will be part of a nationwide community of local behavioral health and I/DD leaders. NACBHDD connects our members to unique resources to help facilitate their individual or organizational growth. We are proud to partner with Triad Community to offer a job posting site along with discounts for posting and education credits for NACBHDD members.

NACBHDD members have opportunities to connect with leaders in behavioral health and I/DD policy at both local and national levels.

Committees

One of NACBHDD's core values is community. Through our committee groups, members can connect with other local authorities to identify important issues, develop the organization's policy positions, and incubate new ideas. We offer four membership committees:

- Directors of State Associations: This Committee meets quarterly to address current issues in behavioral health and I/DD policy and share learnings through peer-led discussions. They also assist in developing the agenda for NACBHDD's annual Legislative & Policy Conference.
- Communications and Public Affairs: This Committee looks for members who have a passion for communications, outreach, and advocacy. Their work includes professional development programming for members, providing input for NACBHDD communications efforts, and member trainings.
- Intellectual and Developmental Disability: This Committee is focused on nationwide strategies for advancing community-based support options for individuals with I/DD. Their priorities in 2023 will be addressing the workforce crisis among direct support professionals, the impact of COVID on the I/DD population, and other emerging issues.
- Behavioral Health and Justice: This Committee leads on issues touching behavioral health, I/DD, and the justice system. From Medicaid Re-Entry to implementation of 988 and coordination with public safety, this Committee acts as a resource for NACBHDD members.

Convening

NACBHDD hosts two consistent monthly meetings. The first meetings are our webinars and Coffee Chat with the CEO in which NACBHDD holds open time to engage with members. Webinars are often co-hosted with corporate partners to build NACBHDD's public-private partnership. The second meeting is exclusive to members: Coffee Chat with the CEO. Coffee Chats are monthly informal meetings that allow members to directly connect with the President/CEO to receive updates, share experiences, and connect with others in the organization. All regular meetings take place virtually.

Annually, NACBHDD hosts a Legislative & Policy Conference with the goal of facilitating a connection between local and national policies within behavioral health and I/DD. This intimate conference allows for candid discussions with policymakers and colleagues. In fact, some attendees have described this conference as "the best little meeting in America". As a member of NACBHDD, you have exclusive access to early registration and ticket discounts.
